

The boxing gloves

11 1 4

Chapter 1 by Gyro

Test log 1

The gloves are performing as planned. The strength it gives is even higher than we expected. As we had hoped the government has not caught wind of what we are working on. Just that they are funding it.

Dr. Sargon signing out

Chapter 2 by rob

Alexander Volkov sits back in his chair, butterflies in his stomach. He had been waiting impatiently for what felt like a eternity for news on the gloves. He knows that if the plan goes ahead like they had meticulously planned, then his life would change forever.

Alexander had always been obsessed with boxing. His dream as a youngster growing up in Kopeysk, Russia had been to become the heavyweight champion of the world. Unfortunately during a very successful amateur career, Alexander suffered multiple metacarpal breaks in his hands the last of which ruled him out of competing at the Olympic games. The news was devastating and to make it worse the doctor had told him in no uncertain terms he would not be able to pursue a career in the ring. He simply would simply not be able to handle the rigours and pu

So before his career had even really started Alexander was having to face the facts that not only was he not going to the Olympic games, something he had dedicated the last 3 years of his life to achieving. His childhood dream of becoming the heavyweight champion of the world, the one thing that gave him his drive, determination and sense of purpose in life had cruelly been snatched away from him.
